DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The additions to independent claims 1, 5, 9, 13 and 14, which recite "one or more of the following conditions are met" is unclear and fails to clearly define the actual inventive structure. How does the presence of the different conditions alter the operation of the basic device? That is, does the redox-reaction described earlier in the independent claims occur anyway, regardless of which condition is chosen? If so, how does each condition, or the combination of conditions, alter the operation of the device?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 are further rejected, insofar as understood, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sakamoto et al in view of Moore and Kozicki et al, all of record, for the reasons given in the previous actions, hereby incorporated by reference. To the extent that the inventive structure is understood, it would appear that these references would meet the claimed structure.
